I've started the search for a decent gf and I need to know which path I should take.

Some bacground information:

>Live in upper middle class liberal suburb (not going to say where)

>Near end of school year, going to go into a new school with none of the people from my current school. (Not college)

>Want to go to either Montana or Idaho when I leave childhood home

>I'm not falling for the college meme, while I'll have the equivalent of a free associates degree by the end of highschool, I'm going to trade school.

So my 2 options are to try and find a gf at the school Im going into, or waiting until I'm grown up and then trying to find a girl in the north west.

Some Pros/Cons:

>If I get a decent gf now, she'll be a virgin and pairbond very well.

>She'll be very young, but it won't be weird. >Will have a lot of extra years that can be used for popping out extra white babies compared to most relationships

>Will probably have to do more work deprogramming liberal delusions in my area.

>I won't be as established at this point in my life, will be harder to support a family.

>I'll have to invest more conservatively than I'd like.

IF I GO THE OTHER ROUTE.

>I'll most likely have to live in Montana rather than Idaho because there are more white women there according to: <http://wherethewhitewomenat.com/>

To my knowledge montana isn't as economical to live in as idaho.

>I'll be richer by the time I settle down

>I'll be able to be a bit more choosey

>I most likely won't find a virgin

So /pol/ what should I do? Should I find a good specimen at school, and how choosey should I be? What point of based-ness of a gf should I start from at this school since my options will be limited, I undoubtedly wiPost too long. Click here to view the full text.
